BROWN SAYS HOOVER WILL RECEIVE 1932 NOMINATION - SURE

Finds Rumblings In South Only Bluff;
Campaign Begun

WASHINGTON, April 7.—If there ever had been the slightest doubt about President Hoover's being a candidate to succeed himself next year it was effectually dispelled today by the statement of Postmaster General Walter F. Brown that Mr. Hoover will be nominated by acclamation in the Republican convention of 1932.

Brown is not only a member of the cabinet, but he is also accounted to be Mr. Hoover's political chief-of-staff. Presumably he speaks for Mr. Hoover in things political. In any event, it isn't likely he would make such a statement if he felt it would be repudiated.

For some time, there have been ominous rumblings in the south. Disgruntled Republicans in Southern states who followed the leadership of Col. Horace Mann in carrying four states of the South for Hoover in 1928, only to find themselves later left outside the patronage breastwork, have been threatening to bolt. Mann has declared the southern delegates to the 1932 convention would go unrepresented.

Brown slipped out of Washington some days ago to find out just what all this rumbling was about. After visiting half a dozen states in the south and southeast, he returned to Washington today with the tidings that it was all a bluff, that the Southern Republicans are standing loyally behind President Hoover, and that the only dissension is the normal, healthy scrambling for local leadership that goes on in any political party.

"There will be no opposition to Mr. Hoover in the convention worthy of a name," said the postmaster general. "I predict he will

MICHIGAN REJECTS DEATH PENALTY

DETROIT, Mich., April 7.—Michigan today had rejected capital punishment for the second time in two years.

In a referendum, the voters turned down a proposal for election in cases of first degree murder. In 1929, the governor vetoed a measure providing the extreme penalty after it had been passed by the legislature.

With returns from about half the state early today, capital punishment was beaten by a decisive majority in a total vote of 600,000. The majority against the bill may be 60,000.

For years capital punishment has been an issue in the state. The bill was passed a month ago by the legislature and signed by the governor.

Other states in the country that do not have capital punishment are Kansas, Maine, Minnesota, North Dakota, Rhode Island, South Dakota and Wisconsin.

EX-BEAUTY WINNER SENTENCED TO JAIL

TOWANDA, Pa., April 7.—Arrested for violating the prohibition law, Irene Knight, who was "Miss Buffalo" in the 1925 Atlantic City beauty pageant, today was sent to serve eighteen months in the Bradford County jail and a fine of $500.

The brunette beauty collapsed when sentence was pronounced by Judge Charles M. Colver.

Miss Knight, whose home is in Towanda, N. Y., told the court she pawned her jewelry and resorted to bootlegging only after she had tramped the streets of Buffalo and New York City in a vain hunt for employment.

The former beauty contest winner had a $2,000 cargo of liquor, which was found in her car when she was arrested here December 16, last. Three hundred and nineteen quarts of liquor were found in a special compartment of the girl's automobile, officers testified.

VOLIVA STEPS FROM TUB ONTO HEATER

ZION CITY, Ill., April 7.—Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of Zion City, internationally known for his belief that the world is shaped like a pancake, is confined to his home today, suffering burns on his foot as the result of stepping from his bath onto a heater.

Although Health Officer J. H. Blanks admitted there was a slight blood infection, he said Voliva is in no danger.

MAY LOSE EYE

STROUSBURG, Pa., April 7.—Because a spark from his pipe fell into a mixture of medicine which he was preparing, Fred Pope, 60, of Tobyhanna may lose the sight of one eye. Pope was preparing the mixture, in which there was a small amount of gunpowder, for his dog suffering from mange.

MILLION CHICAGOANS GO TO POLLS

POTTER MURDER PROBE TURNS SPOTLIGHT ON LAND GRAFTING AGAIN

PORTUGAL MOVES TO COMBAT REBELLION ON OCEAN ISLANDS

Troop Ship Sent To Madeira As Revolt Reported

LISBON, April 7.—Measures for the defense of Funchal, capital of the Madeira Islands, were reported under way today as a steamer crowded with well armed troops sailed from here to combat the military revolt in the picturesque ocean colony.

According to information from the Portuguese possession, where strict censorship and martial law have been proclaimed, the rebel junta of nine men headed by General Sousa Dias has mounted a number of field guns on the heights of Sao Vincente. Troops will probably entrench themselves at strategic points.

The central government here announced that Colonel Fernando Borges will command the troops sailing for the Madeira Islands. He was given wide powers, with orders to bombard Funchal if his revolt to the city is opposed.

A battalion of chasseurs, a machine gun company, a battery of heavy artillery and an aircraft unit comprise the troops aboard the government ship.

Information dribbling in from the Madeiras indicated that the revolutionary movement broke out at Funchal when the island military garrison became incensed at a report that former Governor Jose Maria Freitas would be reinstated in office shortly by President Fragoso Carmona of Portugal.

Senor Freitas, it was understood here, was held responsible for riots which flared last February when a decree was issued affecting the price of wheat flour, but his subordinates were charged with inciting the disturbance and they were subsequently deported. The military garrison was said to have resented his restoration as governor.

A large number of foreign residents at Funchal were not disturbed during the uprising Saturday, which occurred peacefully. Steamers continued to sail from here for the Madeiras, but passengers were informed that they must proceed to Funchal at their own risk.

MICHIGAN MURDER TRIAL NEARING END

DETROIT, April 7.—Michigan's $500,000 court drama—the trial of Ted Pizzino, Angelo Livechi and Joe Bonmarito, three alleged gangsters, for the first degree murder of Gerald Buckley, radio idol—entered its seventh and perhaps its final week today.

Judge Edward J. Jeffries again warned both defense and prosecution attorneys that "proceedings must be speeded up."

Interest in the court battle centered on the questioning of Robert Jackson, negro porter at the La-Salle Hotel where Buckley was "put on the spot." Jackson, who identified Pizzino and Livechi as two of the slayers, was recalled to the witness stand after defense attorneys charged that discrepancies existed in his testimony.

Prosecutor Harry S. Toy declared that the state would rest its case either today or tomorrow. Defense attorneys declared that their case would consume only about three days. Pizzino, Livechi and Bonmarito, will not take the stand, defense attorneys indicated.

JEANNETTE PLANS TO MARRY BROKER

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., April 7.—Jeannette MacDonald, film and musical comedy actress, today verified reports that she would marry Robert G. Ritchie, New York stock broker.

"I am just starting a new picture and will finish it by the first week in June," the actress said. "We will be married at that time here in Hollywood."

Convict Confesses Dead Councilman's Part In Deals

CLEVELAND, April 7.—Spotlight in the investigation of the murder of former Councilman William E. Potter again cast its beam on the sensational land graft deals of 1929 today as the defense for "Pittsburgh Hymie" Martin launched its fight for a new trial of the convicted slayer.

An alleged confession of Robert Bunowitz, one of the persons indicted for complicity in the land deals, said to have been made to a county probation officer, today was in the hands of police.

Potter, who died at the hands of an assassin last Feb. 3, was named by Bunowitz as the man who hired him to make four trips to Chicago in 1929 to take money to Harmon G. Atwater, then a fugitive from justice in the graft scandals. The money, about $700, was sent to Atwater, according to Bunowitz's alleged confession, to keep him from coming back to Cleveland as a state's witness in the land trials.

Bunowitz and Potter both stood trial for the graft deals, the latter being freed and Bunowitz convicted and sentenced to serve one to seven years at Ohio penitentiary. Prosecutor Ray T. Miller stated today that he would seek probation for Bunowitz as a result of his confession.

Bunowitz's statements loaned considerable weight to the theory of Prosecutor Miller that Potter was slain because of his intimate knowledge of the details in the graft.

The alleged confession of Bunowitz followed the filing of a motion in Common Pleas Court by defense Attorney William Minshall, asking for a new trial of Martin on the murder charges.

Twenty-eight irregularities and errors in the first trial were listed by Minshall in the motion for the new trial, which will be heard by Judge McMahon next Saturday morning. At that time, unless a new trial is granted, Martin will hear his sentence of life imprisonment without hope of pardon.

Three of the twenty-eight charges made by Minshall were directed at McMahon's action in calling back the jury for further instructions after it had deliberated on the case for more than ten hours. Minshall declared that provisions of the new criminal code precluded Judge McMahon from giving the jurors anything but the written charge which they took with them into the juryroom.

At about the same time that Minshall's motion was being filed, Mrs. Margaret Martin, estranged wife of the convicted man appeared at county jail with their three-year-old daughter, Shirley, to visit him.

They were together for more than an hour, after which Martin told newspapermen that his wife believes "I am innocent." It was the first time they had been together for several months. Hymie refused to see his wife when she visited the jail in Pittsburgh after his arrest last February 12.

CONDITION OF KING GEORGE UNCHANGED

LONDON, April 7.—Announcement was made at Windsor palace today that the condition of King George remained unchanged, although he still suffered from "influenza and cold."

Physicians' orders confined the monarch to his chamber, although he was able to remain out of bed and attend to routine state duties.

He will remain indoors until warmer weather develops.

INVESTIGATION OF DEATH MARKS TIME

HAMILTON, O., April 7.—Investigation of the mysterious slaying of Robert Gaines, 23, during a private dance last Saturday midnight, was at a standstill today as police sought evidence with which to pin the shooting upon one particular person.

Several material witnesses have been questioned in connection with Gaines' death but none has been able to detail the circumstances. Gaines was shot through the chest. He died several hours later.

CUPID CHASING DOROTHY MACKAILL

Neither Miss Mackaill, shown in two delightful photos above, nor Byron have made any direct admissions concerning the romance.

CLEVELAND POLICE HUNT GIRL INVOLVED IN BABY MYSTERY

Brought Three Babies
To Aunt In Four Months, Is Said

CLEVELAND, April 7.—At the request of Toledo authorities, Cleveland police today scoured the city for a woman who is said to have taken three babies to the home of her aunt in Toledo in the past four months, explaining that they had been "given to her."

The niece, believed to be employed in a Cleveland boarding house, brought the third of the babies to the home of her aunt, Mrs. Clara Crawford, a week ago. Mrs. Crawford became alarmed when her niece failed to return for the baby and she notified police, who took the baby to Women's and Children's Hospital there. Police here were notified.

Mrs. Crawford informed Toledo police that her niece had brought two other babies to her home in the past four months and then had taken them away, it was said.

The aunt said she had been told several conflicting stories about the third baby by her niece. One was that she had the baby for a year and it had been given her. Later she told Mrs. Crawford that the baby's mother had been killed in a traffic accident last December and that she was taking care of it.

NATIVES RETURN TO RUINED DWELLINGS DESPITE WARNINGS

Chlorinated Water Is Ready; Markets
Being Opened

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, April 7.—Although Managua still smoldered after its destruction by earthquake and fire a week ago, scores of natives abandoned temporary shelters today and re-established themselves in their ruined homes without household goods, light or drinking water.

They shrugged shoulders at warnings against danger from weakened walls and cleared away the debris littering their habitations. The exodus to other cities has slackened perceptibly.

The first supply of water, highly chlorinated, passed through the reconstructed mains from Lake Managua to Campo Del Marte yesterday. For the present it will be used solely for sanitary purposes, with American Engineers busily engaged in erecting a temporary system for filtration into the capital.

As each day passes, signs of returning normality and a growing spirit of reconstruction become more obvious. Three or four public market places will be opened for regular business today or tomorrow. Foodstuffs will be sold at modest prices to those who can afford to pay.

Discussion about removing the government seat to nearby cities, preferably Masaya, continued, but nothing definite has come of it so far. President Moncada stated he was undecided.

The death toll has been officially estimated at 2,000, but other estimates said the total fatalities may exceed 3,000. Bodies are still being taken from the ruins by rescue workers.

MILD WEATHER AIDS EXPECTED BIG VOTE IN MAYORALTY RACE

Worker Threatened;
Both Candidates
Are Confident

CHICAGO, April 7.—A million Chicagoans marched on the ballot boxes today to decide whether William Hale Thompson, Republican or Anton J. Cermak, Democrat, is to be world's fair mayor.

All the way from the exclusive "gold coast" sector to the first ward, known as the "flop house" territory, the polling places were jammed. Never in recent years has such an interest been manifested in a municipal election.

An army of judges and clerks was on duty to prevent irregularities in the city's 2,987 precincts. There were more than 1,000 special election watchers. City and county police were held in readiness to respond to any riot calls.

Mild, clear weather accounted for a rush at the polls shortly after they opened.

Early violence included the receipt of a death threat by a Democratic precinct captain and two slugging matches between rival election workers. The man threatened was provided with a guard, and police patrols quickly put an end to the fistfights.

Both Thompson and Cermak forces handed out statements of confidence.

"It will be a landslide for your mayor," asserted "Big Bill," who has served as Chicago's chief executive for twelve years after returning here as a successful rancher and robust sportsman. "It will be the greatest majority of my career."

Supporters of Cermak, a Bohemian boy who rose from humble occupation in the Illinois mine fields

Doolittle at a meeting sponsored by the Ligue Internationale Des Aviateurs.

SEVEN CHILDREN AND FATHER PERISH WHEN CABIN IS DESTROYED

Eighth Child, Painfully Burned, Crawls Quarter
Of Mile For Help; Expected To Die; Neighbor Finds Tiny Home In Ruins

GALLIPOLIS, O., April 7.—A father and seven of his eight children were burned to death today in a fire which broke out as they slept in their tiny log cabin at Swan Creek on the banks of the Ohio River ten miles south of here.

The dead are: James White, 59, the father; Mary, 20; James, 18; John, 14; Ira, 9; May, 5, and twin girls Nora and Dora, aged 3.

The eighth child, George, 12, escaped death in the tragic holocaust. He was so seriously burned however, that he was not expected to live.

News of the fire was carried to neighbors living a quarter of a mile away by the 12-year-old survivor, who despite his painful injuries, crawled the distance to secure help.

Gilbert Lane, one of the neighbors summoned by the 12-year-old boy, rushed to the scene of the conflagration. By the time of his arrival, however, the log cabin was in ruins, a burning grave for the father and the seven children. White and his children, it was said, just recently moved into the cabin after having been ordered to leave Gallipolis. The family was said to be poverty-stricken.

The wife and mother died three years ago when the twins, Nora and Dora were born.

Cause of the fire was not immediately determined. The youthful survivor of the disaster lapsed into unconsciousness shortly after he arrived at the home of Lane and gasped out the news of the horrible fire.

The blaze was believed to have started about 3 o'clock this morning. It apparently gained rapid headway, turning the entire cabin into a veritable torch before the sleeping father and his children were aware of the blistering fire. Witnesses said the cabin, a crudely constructed farm structure, burned like tissue paper.

KIRKLAND HOPEFUL WHEN COURT GRANTS RETRIAL OF MURDER

Gambles For Lighter
Sentence With Death
Alternative

VALPARAISO, Ind., April 7.—Despite the fact the threat of the electric chair again looms before him, Virgil Kirkland, convicted of the murder of Arlene Draves during a drinking affair, was happy today.

Both he and his family regard as a forerunner of ultimate victory the ruling yesterday permitting the high school athlete another trial on the charge for which he is now under a sentence of life imprisonment.

The new trial is set for April 20. The same technicality which gives the youth another chance to prove his innocence forces the defendant into a desperate gamble—liberty or death in the electric chair with no alternative of life imprisonment.

After Judge Grant Crumpacker made his ruling, Prosecutor John Underwood announced the state would not prosecute the first two counts of the indictment. He said he would go on trial on the third and fourth counts, both of which charge murder by ravishment or attempted ravishment and carry a mandatory death penalty.

From Charles Draves, father of the slain girl, came a note of bitterness and reproach. He said: "I didn't think they'd do it. I thought Kirkland was lucky at the first trial. He didn't get what he deserved, but maybe he'll get it next time."

Kirkland was convicted on the count that he killed Arlene by beating her with his fists, under which it was obligatory for the state to show premeditation and malice, and it was on this point Judge Crumpacker made his ruling. "The evidence of intent willfully to take a life must always be circumstantial. The evidence in this case does not warrant the verdict which it was obligatory for the state to show premeditation and malice, and it was on this point Judge Crumpacker made his ruling."

In part, the ruling said: "The evidence of intent willfully to take a life must always be circumstantial. The evidence in this case does not warrant the verdict which it was obligatory for the state to show premeditation and malice, and it was on this point Judge Crumpacker made his ruling."

Mitchell was taken into custody by Sheriff V. E. Main of Delaware, who with Deputies Patrick and Callahan of Franklin County, found the youth in a bed room at his home. Under Mitchell's pillow were discovered two revolvers.

Following his arrest, Mitchell made a full confession, according to Sheriff Main. The confession was being checked today.

Mitchell was not linked with the attempted holdup of the Worthington Bank until after his arrest, according to Sheriff Main.

GERMAN EXPRESSES OPTIMISTIC VIEW OF FUTURE GERMANY

Optimism for the immediate future of Germany, despite conditions which he described as making the world-wide economic crisis most severely felt in that country, was expressed by Theodore Plant, professor of applied economics at the University of Hamburg, when he talked to students and faculty of Antioch College Monday.

Professor Plant said the factors accentuating the depression in Germany were the problems of adjustment with the new frontiers of the country and certain internal conditions, chief among which he called the lack of capital. He told the students that the country is still in the process of reorganization, the second in the past fifteen years. The change of the country from a peace to war production basis in 1914 was the first, he said; while the change back to the peace basis, still going on, has been the second.

This reorganization, he stated, coupled with other factors like the reparations debt payments, has made it impossible to get capital in Germany except at extremely high rates, such as nine and ten per cent for business and ten and fifteen per cent for agriculture. He cited instances of raising of interest rates on German securities and of declining quotations to bring the interest yields on these securities in line with general rates throughout the country.

Although Germany has had a slight favorable trade balance for the past few years, Professor Plant continued, this has been the result of forced selling to outside markets because of the inability of the country to absorb the production. This, he said, made the balance of little significance of a constructive nature.

Describing unemployment in Germany, Professor Plant said approximately 25 per cent of the workers of the country, or about five million, were out of work and being maintained by the unemployment insurance system of the country. This figure, he said, is greater than that of England and greater proportionally than that of the United States.

The indications of recovery, he went on, were first the arrival of the peak of unemployment in the country two weeks earlier this year than usual, and second, apparent decline of liquidation selling. He tempered his optimism, however, with the acknowledgment that the recovery depended largely on the trends in other parts of the world.

Professor Plant admitted the improbability of abolition of reparations payments, but said that such a move would speed up the recovery materially. He also advocated the revision of the Young Plan to bring payments in line with economic conditions of the German people.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY

CONDUCTED ON TOUR

There were no dull moments when the Lal Bagh Missionary Society of Trinity M. E. Church met at the home of Mrs. H. C. Aultman, St. Monday evening. A personally-conducted tour through five countries was the enjoyable feature of the program. When one crossed the threshold of the Aultman home she was caught by the pervading atmosphere of the Orient. The first floor of the home had been converted into a realistic scene, representing Africa, India, China, Japan and South America.

The ability of the women of the oriental countries to have a variety of colors for use in their own homes, and the using of these beautiful bits of art from the Orient, contributed much to the beauty of the tour. In each country visited by the fifty-eight tourists one saw beautiful pottery, tapestries, table covers and baskets. The appointments and the various little elegancies of the countries greeted each tourist. The guides discussed the industrial and economic conditions of the countries as well as the antiquities of art and religion. Child life of each country was compared to that of the United States.

In Africa Mrs. M. W. Monroe acted as guide, assisted by Miss Cora Barnett, in native costume. Peanuts were served the guests. Mrs. William Wilson, dressed in a kimono, conducted the tour. Mrs. J. J. Nease, in South America, the tourists were served a cup of coffee by Mrs. Aultman, assisted by Mrs. Edward Hunt.

The program concluded with a reading, "In Christ There Is No East Nor West" by Miss Edith Robinson. Miss Wella Shipley conducted the devotional service and Mrs. Helen Smith sang a solo, accompanied by Miss Jean Rankin. The committee in charge of the meeting is grateful to Mrs. Lawrence Shields and Mr. John Nisbet for the use of their collections of rugs, pottery and baskets from South America. E. T. S.

FESS PROPHECIES RENOMINATION OF HOOVER; THINKS CURTIS WILL RUN

Senator Denies Report Walter Brown Will Seek Vice Presidency; Discredits Claims Of Col. Mann; Home Stay Will Be Short

"There is no doubt in my mind but that President Hoover will be renominated for a second term at the 1932 Republican National Convention."

This emphatic statement was made Tuesday by United States Senator Simeon D. Fess, who returned to his home in Yellow Springs Saturday for a brief but much needed rest.

Senator Fess predicted President Hoover will be renominated by acclamation and that there will be little opposition to his candidacy, except possibly "some fugitive efforts against him by the Wisconsin and Minnesota group."

The senior Ohio senator, who is chairman of the National Republican Committee, also discredited reports that Postmaster General Walter E. Brown, Toledo, nurses a secret ambition to succeed Charles Curtis on the ticket as vice president in 1932.

"I have talked myself with Mr. Brown and know it to be a fact that he has no desire to gain the vice presidential nomination," Senator Fess said. "Furthermore," he asserted, "I cannot help but think that Mr. Curtis will break the established Republican precedent and be renominated for a second term next year."

"Never has a Republican vice-president been nominated to succeed himself and there is only one instance of a Democratic vice-president being nominated for a second term. Mr. Curtis, however, has a particularly strong following in the West, has been loyal and has wholeheartedly supported the present administration."

Commenting upon a report that certain disgruntled Republicans in Southern states have threatened to bolt the party ranks in 1932, Senator Fess charged the rumors are without foundation and were instigated by a "discredited Republican leader."

Admitting he referred to Col. Horace Mann, who was instrumental in carrying four states of the usually solid Democratic South for Hoover in 1928, Senator Fess declared the old practice of selling patronages has been broken up by President Hoover and that his dis-continuation of this custom has made for him certain enemies in the "old crowd."

"President Hoover demanded a new deal through the South," the senator explained. "By a new deal I mean new blood in the ranks. Col. Mann was one of the voluntary organizers for Hoover's campaign in the South in 1928. There is no basis for his alleged declaration that the Southern states who followed his leadership in 1928 will bolt the party next year."

Senator Fess also made the prediction that Ohio would give the Republican presidential nominee

LEGION MOBILIZES RAPIDLY IN EMERGENCY TEST HERE MONDAY

Monday night, on the fourteenth anniversary of the entrance of the United States in the World War, more than 50 per cent of the membership of Joseph P. Foody Post, No. 95, American Legion, was mobilized in response to the state-wide call for mobilization of Legionnaires emergency relief units.

This marked the first state-wide call of its kind ever issued in Ohio and Paul Fuller, commander of Foody Post, reported 118 Legionnaires assembled at post headquarters in the Court House basement within an hour after the call, which was broadcast at 7:15 p. m.

In addition to 118 Legionnaires mobilized on short notice, seventy-eight Boy Scouts reported ready for duty within an hour, twenty-five reporting in fifteen minutes and fifty-eight in half an hour. Eight registered nurses also gathered at headquarters within the specified time.

The fire bell, factory, railroad and O. S. and S. O. Home whistles and the telephone exchange aided materially in summoning Legionnaires to the designated point immediately after the call was issued. Firemen rang the bell in the engine house, whistles at the Hoover and Allison Co., R. A. Kelly Co., Pennsylvania roundhouse and the Home were blown and the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. also co-operated, the exchange phoning a total of 120 Legionnaires within twenty minutes.

Commander Fuller, commenting upon preparedness of the local emergency unit to cope with an actual community disaster, said the most drastic need is more adequate hospitalization facilities. A survey Monday night showed only five beds were available in local hospitals in case of a real emergency. He pointed out, however, fifty beds could have been utilized at the Home hospital and that 100 or more cots could be placed in the National Guard armory here.

Officials of George E. Dignam Post, No. 526, American Legion of Fairfield and Osborn, also reported a satisfactory mobilization of Legionnaires, Boy Scouts and members of the Auxiliary in that community Monday night. The post is commanded by Fred Mumma and has a membership of 178, of which only eighty-four, however, reside in that vicinity. The call in Bath Twp. was signaled by two long blasts of a fire engine siren and within fifteen minutes fifty-five Legionnaires, twenty-seven out of thirty-two Scouts and twelve out of thirty-five members of the Auxiliary had been assembled.

The four officers, together with Supt. Hammerle, Capt. H. L. Hays, of the O. S. and S. O. Home and Fred Lang, compose the club's board of directors. Newly-elected officers will not assume office until early in July, but the election was held at this time so that the new officers may attend a district conference of Rotary Clubs in Youngstown, April 13 and 14.

Raphael Emmanuel, native of Chelsea, who spoke before the student body of Central High School Tuesday afternoon, was guest speaker at the club. He spoke on the music and literature of his country and also told of his country's customs and habits.

ST. BRIGID CARD PARTY GIVEN MONDAY

More than 100 people attended a card party given by the men of St. Brigid Church in the school auditorium Monday evening as the first post-Lenten social affair. Bridge, "500" and euchre were played and refreshments were served. Proceeds from the affair will be added to the church fund.

Prizes were awarded the following: bridge—Mrs. F. E. Neff, Chicago and Mr. Lawrence Purdon; "500"—Mrs. Maud Ryan, Mrs. James Leahy, Mr. John Leahy and Mr. James Conner; euchre—Mrs. L. Wessel and Miss Margaret Whalen. Mrs. James Hibbert was awarded the door prize.

SUSPECT SOUGHT ON WARRANT CHARGING ASSAULT, ROBBERY

A warrant charging Herbert Rowe, Fairfield, with assault and robbery was sworn out Monday by John Hoover, cook at Fairfield Air Depot, following an alleged attack upon him by Rowe and an unidentified woman companion on the Indian Rifle Road, southwestern Greene County, early Sunday morning.

Hoover told Sheriff John Baughn he was slugged, robbed of $92 and a wrist watch worth $40, and left lying along the roadside about 2 a. m.

Mystery shrouding the source of a telephone message received at the airport, which led to finding Hoover disappeared Monday when the cook said he made the call himself.

The victim said he made his way to a farmhouse and phoned friends at the airport, who called for him and took him to the field.

The robbery was not reported to county authorities until Sunday afternoon and an investigation developed the fact Rowe had left Fairfield Sunday morning. It was reported he went to Ironton, O., and a search for him is in progress.

Authorities learned Hoover paid Rowe $2 to take him to Dayton Saturday night and that later they met a woman acquaintance of Rowe's. The three drove through Dayton on their way, as Hoover supposed, to the woman's home, but at a deserted spot the car was stopped and Hoover was forced out of the machine, he said. Then the man and woman took his money and watch, beat him over the head and drove away, Hoover said.

RECEIVES COLLECTION

CHICAGO, April 7.—A collection of 400 fish specimens and numerous corals and other marine invertebrates, collected by the Chancellor-Stewart Field Museum expedition to the remote island of Atafu in the South Pacific has been received at the Field Museum of Natural History.

Soon after his arrival in Ohio, Senator Fess, now chairman of the national committee, will be consulted about a new set-up to replace the organization which was unable to re-elect former Governor Myers Y. Cooper last fall.

A meeting will be held in Columbus soon when Republican leaders will attempt to harmonize conflicting factions of the party which have criticized and defended the leadership of Edward D. Schorr of Cincinnati and Columbus, the state G. O. P. chairman.

The recent selection of Paul Cresswell of Xenia as United States Marshal for the southern district of Ohio by the senator from Yellow Springs was interpreted as a repudiation of the Hamilton County-scholar organization and led Republicans to believe that he may favor a shake-up in the state leadership.

The problem of selecting a new member of the national committee also must be taken up by the state organization soon. Maurice Maschke of Cleveland, it was said today, is unwilling to accept re-appointment again.

PAIN IN YOUR SHOULDER?

Use Tysmol for Relief

Knife-like jabs of pain in the vicinity of the shoulder blade are generally due to neuritis, brought on by exposure to draughts or sudden changes of weather. In some cases there is stiffness or soreness in the muscles, making it difficult to raise the arm. The safest and easiest way to relieve such an attack is to apply a small quantity of Tysmol over the affected area. This soothing, healing preparation is quickly absorbed through the pores and carried to the throbbing aching peripheral nerves. The pains usually stop at once, and in a very short time the last trace of soreness should disappear. Tysmol is absolutely harmless—free from drugs. Recommended for all forms of nerve pain, whether caused by neuritis, neuralgia, sciatica or rheumatism. Sold by leading druggists. Always on hand at

IN FOUR YEARS

"The Home Of Thrift"

If a man had placed $1,000 in a Dayton Building Association in 1926, he could now buy as much in standard commodities as he could have bought in 1926 for $1,600. Falling prices with consequent increasing purchasing power of the dollar, and the magic of Compound Interest share about equally in bringing about this splendid reward.

Do you know of any other safe and certain way in which this increase would have been produced without any effort on your part?

It is by no means certain that the increase in purchasing power of the dollar may not continue through falling prices and the opportunity to you is still open.

Just a little less of luxury and a little more of prudent saving may insure your future comfort and happiness.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Of his own will begat he us with the word of truth, that we should be a kind of firstfruits of his creatures. Wherefore, my beloved brethren, let every man be swift to hear, slow to speak, slow to wrath; For the wrath of man worketh not the righteousness of God.—James,

RECIPROCAL AGREEMENT

After May 1, 1931, Americans visiting Colombia and Colombians visiting the United States, will have their passports visaed free of charge. The reciprocal agreement to this effect is the thirty-fifth which the United States has concluded with foreign powers under the law of February 25, 1925. Thirteen of these agreements waive both visas and visa fees, 13 waive only the fees and nine cover reductions in visa fees to amounts varying from $1 to $4.

Gradually the government is getting away from the expensive visa nuisance. Americans traveling abroad since congress fixed a $10 visa fee, which other countries naturally promptly followed, are aware how large this item loomed in moderate budgets. As long as countries continue the passport practice, at least they ought not to discourage travel by making it any more costly than necessary. General abolition of passports would be a boon to the traveling public of all countries.

DISGRACE (?) OF HOME WORK

The scarcity of factory and office work in many communities the past winter, has induced a good many women to take jobs temporarily as housekeepers or domestic servants. Many of them appear ashamed of their employment, as if they had come down in the world. Also many of them are said to conceal the nature of their work from their friends and relatives. They resort to various subterfuges to prevent their kind of employment from becoming known.

Also many of the women who are doing this kind of work, seem very unhappy about it. Instead of taking an interest in housework, which calls for just as much brains as office or factory tasks, they are sour and unhappy.

There is no form of labor that contributes more to people's comfort and welfare, than the care of a home. There are millions of women who are not able to perform the tasks of housekeeping without some help. Many who are doing this work, are not physically up to it, and are wearing themselves out by trying to do something beyond their powers.

Many of these women who formerly had a servant, or "hired girl," as the country folks used to call that most estimable young lady, are now unable to employ any such person, owing to the high wages usually paid these helpers.

But as millions of young women consider that they are socially lowered if they take such work, it has become necessary to pay wages for it which taken in addition to the value of the room and food which these workers receive, is more than the average office or factory girl earns in cities and towns.

It is unfortunate when such a false point of view prevents people from obtaining comfortable homes and serving a real community need.

THE CHANCE TAKERS

Nearly 700,000 school children competed last year for prizes in competitions for the best essays on the subject of safety. These campaigns have been conducted for 10 years by the highway education board, and many children in this city should try for one of these prizes this year.

The children who attempt to write these essays would do well to discuss the spirit that makes a great many people, both young and old, take chances. There are several reasons for this chance taking spirit.

1.—The idea that safety precautions are in some way ignoble. Many people seem to think that there is something admirable in taking chances. Where one takes chances for some noble cause, as does the soldier in battle, it is praiseworthy. But in daily life, when we take chances in crossing a street, or in working in a factory, we merely show ourselves foolish. We are also inconsiderate of the friends and relatives who may have to support and care for us if we are injured.

2.—Mere thoughtlessness. Many people believe theoretically in the idea of taking reasonable precautions, but they do not carry out that idea. They just heedlessly run into danger. Such folks need to form the habit of considering the conditions in which they move, and seeing dangers before they become imminent. Once they form the habit, it will become second nature to avoid peril.

3.—Failure to realize the stupidity of taking chances. To save a quarter of a minute of time, many people expose themselves to risks which may make them cripples for a life time. It is an incredible act of folly.

These young essay writers should wake up their comrades to this form of foolishness. The country pays a terrible price of crippled lives each year for this chance taking spirit.

GANGSTER LOOT

Considerable guesswork must be resorted to in estimating the amount of tribute paid annually by the American people to the racketeers and other criminals in this country. But it is unlikely that the New York crime commission indulged in any very wild exaggeration when it said that the total is between twelve and eighteen billions of dollars.

True, even the minimum sum mentioned is a staggering amount of money. It is about three-quarters of the national debt. It is equal to perhaps fifteen or sixteen per cent of the estimated total national wealth, which means that in the course of seven or eight years, a sum equal to the whole of that wealth passes through the hands of predatory criminals. It is an amount large enough to run the federal government for two and a half to three years. The sum, if saved and kept in the channels of legitimate business, might easily have prevented all the economic trouble from which the people and business of the United States have suffered for the last year. Twelve billions of extra resources would have kept this country "on the top of the world" and then some.

But before doubting the figures of the New York crime commission, remember that the activities of the racketeers are almost as varied and intricate as the commercial activities and industrial pursuits of the people of the nation; and that they exact tribute from every possible source of "revenue" with an ingenuity, indefatigability and ruthlessness characteristic of an oriental despot. Scores of thousands of them grow fat and wealthy, even though most of them are chronic, reckless spendthrifts.

While this condition persists, while racketeer looting becomes constantly more prevalent and more firmly established as a part of the national life, while racketeer agents strut about the streets leering at law and order, and even enter court rooms and sneer in the faces of judges, attorneys and juries, daring them to function at the price of their lives, this country calls itself a sapient, self governing, business-like nation; a pattern for all those that want to be free!

PAGE MR. SOLOMON

NEW YORK CITY, New York—Another question asked applicants for licenses is framed thus: "Is there any circumstance under which you would allow an unlicensed operator to drive your car?" The natural answer to that would be "NO."

But the lad who is in the habit of leaning back and permitting the lines of thought to deepen in his brow would probably reflect that if an injured person were in immediate need of hospital care and an unlicensed driver were the only chauffeur at hand, the emergency would be ample warrant for violating the rule.

The only way to master a questionnaire of that character and emerge with some show of intelligence, is to answer the questions honestly, and not scribble replies calculated to make a hit with the Commissioner.

THIS MODESTY!

George Peck, the Sage of Gramercy, said to me the other day: "Why don't you write something in the column about your new book?"

"Oh," I laughed, "you mean 'The Vice Squad,' published by Vanguard Press, on sale at all book-sellers, two bucks, and worth it?"

"Yes."

"I'll tell you George," I said, "I don't think it's good taste to do a thing like that."

"You're too thin-skinned."

"No," I replied, "it isn't that. Personally, I think 'The Vice Squad' is the greatest novel that has appeared since Columbus discovered America; but I'd rather have somebody else say it."

"I wouldn't count too much on that," he said. "Remember the old Biblical injunction: 'He who bloweth not his own horn, the same it shall not be blown.'"

I told George I'd consider it; but I don't think I'll write anything about it.

You know how it is . . .

RIGHT EITHER WAY

Edward Dean Sullivan, author of "Chicago Surrenders," and "Rattling The Cup on Chicago Crime," is spending the Spring in Hollywood visiting up the innocent movie folk out there on "devilmint."

What motion pictures need, among other things, says Signor Sullivan, is not necessarily more crime, but certainly better crime.

He may mean the acting or he may be referring to the scenarios. Either or both, we second the motion.

WRECKED RACKET

Recently a wealthy New York woman arrived from Europe with dozens of trunks filled with the finest clothes and presented her receipted bills to the customs officer, whereupon that official grimly produced a set of photostatic copies of other bills for the same clothes—with widely different totals.

In Paris, many days before, a spy for the United States Customs, after long weeks of studying the bookkeeping methods of one of the large dressmaking firms, had executed a coup which netted her 1,500,000 francs and cost the wealthy New York woman 6,000,000 francs for under-declaration of dutiable goods.

The spy discovered where the bills of the firm were kept. Gaining access, after business hours, she took these bills, had them photostated and replaced them before morning.

This episode few houses of couture in that dear Paris provide customers with receipted bills, with which to pass customs.

ANOTHER LANDMARK GONE!

BUSINESS, LABOR, STATE URGED TO JOIN ISSUES FOR PERMANENT RELIEF

(This is the second of a series of two dispatches in which Charles P. Stewart, on tour, interviews Melvin Alvah Trowler, noted midwestern financier, and president of the First National bank of Chicago, on remedies for the economic depression. The dispatch dealing with causes was printed yesterday.)

What motion pictures need, among other things, says Signor Sullivan, is not necessarily more crime, but certainly better crime. He may mean the acting or he may be referring to the scenarios. Either or both, we second the motion.

CHICAGO.—Having analyzed America's economic indisposition President Melvin A. Trowler of the First National bank of Chicago raised the question:

"What are we going to do about it?"

"In my opinion," he continued, "relief can only be attained if we regard our ideal as a pool of prosperity out of which labor can draw its fair share, invested capital a reasonable return, and government the minimum requirements for its operation."

For all too long we have dealt with emergencies on the spur of the moment, without any well-matured plans or any consistency of purpose.

"Is it asking too much of reasonable men in business and government to sit down together and endeavor to formulate a policy? In such a conference must meet the representatives of all classes interested in our social, economic and political welfare."

"The government's representatives," continued Banker Trowler, "must be willing to consider questions of public policy more genuinely from the standpoint of human welfare than from that of personal aggrandizement."

"The government must practice those principles of integrity, economy and industry which should characterize the conduct of every citizen, to the end that the burden of maintaining it may not measure."

ALL of US

By MARSHALL MASLIN

The World You Can't Explore. It Belongs to Children. No Intrusion.

Children are funny creatures and people who say they understand them probably do not. They remember what they DID when they were children, but it's hardly likely that they know what they thought in that remote age.

Almost every child I've ever known lived two lives. He asked questions of grownups and collected a fund of that kind of information; he had quite another mass of knowledge that he gained from other little boys and girls. He seemed to have certain opinions about his elders, while some of these opinions were not his own, he had worked out the others for himself. You could never quite tell which opinions he was giving when he answered your questions.

Most of the children I've known seem to admit that a spanking or some kind of punishment is necessary, because there are times when they are "bad."

And they have a lore that descends to them from slightly older children and is not imparted by their fathers and mothers.

If a little boy is ticklish, he "likes girls." If he puts a poppy up to your throat, he can tell whether you like butter or don't. A small child with a gleam in her eyes comes home and recites: "Railroad crossing: Look out for the cars!"

Can you spell that without any "rs?"

Or she sings out to you, "Constantinople you can't spell it!" Or her brother asks you, innocent, "Do you want a stamp?" and when you say you do, he plants one of his small feet down on yours and shouts, "There it is!" "Benie, meenie, minie, moe!" "Tibbity, bibbity, babbity sab!" are as sure as measles and whooping cough; nearly every youngster, at some time or other, wishes he had a wishing stone; they all go down the street trying not to step on cracks because that would break their mothers' backs; they run pell-mell past you, shouting, "Last one to the corner is a nigger baby!"

And before they've begun to know the English language they start twisting it out of shape and make up sentences like "Cangree yougree comegee outgree togree playgree?"—which no grownup is supposed to understand.

It's an odd world the youngsters live in, and you mustn't intrude. You couldn't get in and they wouldn't allow it. You must laugh at their jokes, you mustn't laugh at them. You must answer their questions, but you mustn't ask them too many questions, or they'll turn into clams right before your eyes. And you can never "get down to their level," because it's not really a level at all—but a state of being.

Another tendency of modern business is the substitution of machines for men. Synthetically we are eliminating workers, whereas synthetically we have found no method of increasing consumption. This fact challenges the unselfish consideration of the management of American business.

"At the conference to which I have referred," said President Trowler, "of course there must be present labor's spokesmen, for the plan will wholly fail unless the program gives to those who work for their daily bread, which includes most of us, an equal opportunity to work and enjoy the fruits of their labor."

Employers must be as quick to recognize the real wage in a rising market as labor must be to recognize it in a falling market, or there can be no stability in prosperity and employment. Business cannot prosper if costs eliminate profit; labor cannot work as fully as it should if capital is denied a proper return."

SUGGESTIONS

To Clean Overalls Stiff with Paint

First soak the garment in warm soapy water (you may use a little washing powder) about 10 minutes. Drain all the water off. Pour one-half gallon kerosene over garment. Let soak an hour. The paint will then rub off easily. Drain off kerosene. Add hot water enough to cover, with a little washing powder, and boil. This will clean out the dirt and grease if any remains. Rinse several times in clean warm water.

Keep Well By Applying Food Facts

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

When such statements as those recently made by Dr. Robert Hutchinson are quoted one casts around to test them by actual experience. He said that people were healthier if they paid no attention to any hygienic rules and ate what they wanted with no consideration of anything but appetite.

His remarks made quite a hit with a great many doctors, and just as people who think about their health all the time, and who are constantly worrying about balancing their diet, are likely to create an atmosphere of ill-health by that very fact. But we have learned certain facts about diet that must be deliberately applied in order to produce a healthy result. Food balancing is one of the only two real and definite methods of preventive medicine we have. In other days lack of this knowledge and application of these facts led to a great deal of scurvy and rickets and other diseases which are now very largely prevented.

It is all right to say let your appetite be your guide in a community where the food supply is plentiful and varied. But in regions where this is not true a great deal of preventable disease develops. As an illustration of this, we have lately had the report on a survey of conditions in Labrador. The report shows that the inhabitants buy their total supplies for a year at one time—flour, molasses, oleo, etc. Their fresh food is mostly fish. Some of them raise potatoes, turnips, and cabbage, but hardly ever enough to last through the winter. As a consequence, rickets, scurvy, undernutrition, beri-beri, and night blindness are very common.

Their average daily ration is 2,610 calories, 104 grams of protein, 457 grams of carbohydrate, 43 grams of fat, half a gram of calcium, 2 grams of phosphorus and 0.019 grams of iron. This is very good so far as it goes, but the Labrador diet contains very small quantities of vitamins. The calcium is low, and widespread occurrence of bad teeth and dental decay is the result. The iron content is low, but was made up pretty well if molasses was consumed; but when families get prosperous they substitute sugar for molasses with a disastrous reduction of iron in the daily ration. This last statement alone serves to make one doubt the entire wisdom of Dr. Hutchinson's statement.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

B. B. (no address given): "I have had dizzy spells for the past year, mostly at lunch time in a restaurant. I have to wrap my legs around the chair to brace myself and dig my finger nails into my flesh to keep from losing consciousness. Some possible underlying causes: Siege of epilepsy, seven years ago, no spells for five years. No medicine for two years. Sinus trouble. I have told some doctors about it, and they haven't taken any interest in it. Even if it's nothing to worry about, it is very embarrassing when I catch myself lurching."

Answer: Vertigo is due to irritation of the equilibrium organ located close to the internal ear. Infection from the nasal sinuses will cause it. That association is one of the reasons why the specialties of nose and throat and ear are practiced together. I feel sure there are many doctors, especially in that specialty, who will know about and be interested in such cases.

Editor's Note: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin for each and a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper, or Central Press Association, 1435 East Twelfth Street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Pernicious Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Makes No Effort To Get Divorce

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"MISS VIRGINIA LEE: I am a girl of 30 and I have been going with a man about 15 years older for about a year and a half. He is married, but doesn't care anything about his wife. They have one son.

"He seems to think a lot of me, and comes to see me whenever he can get away from his wife, but he doesn't seem to make any effort to get a divorce, although he says he cannot live without her. And yet he does everything his wife wants him to do for her."

"Do you think he is treating me right?"

He is treating you as such men usually treat the women who are their diversions. Perplexed. Is he treating his wife right, do you think. And are you treating her and her son right?

You know he belongs to another woman. You would be ashamed to steal her automobile or her silver or any of her belongings that he probably does not value nearly as much as she does her husband, but you do not seem to think you are doing anything wrong by stealing him. How come?

You probably will argue that you can't help your feelings and that you love him. But you would condemn a much younger person who had an irresistible urge to steal a "he should have controlled his impulses," you would have said.

You are experiencing the common lot of the woman who allows a married man to make love to her. Almost universally such a man's wife will "not understand him"; they are not "happy together," and he "cannot live without the love" of his new playmate; yet he is very careful never to let his wife know how he feels toward her and suggest that she give him his freedom to enable him to marry the "perfect mate" with whom he is enamored.

Wake up, my dear! Get a boy friend who is free to make love and marry you, and leave other women's husbands alone.

Kitty: I think your mother is mistaken, and I would stay in school just as long as possible. Tell her you will be able to earn more money the better schooling you have.

Duchess: I think that was a very nasty thing for your sister to do. Duchess and most girls would have told the boy friend just what 57 varieties of faults she was gifted with, or written him the sad news falling the chance to tell it. I think the slapping was a mild punishment. Don't bother to tell him, however. You would only put yourself in her class. Just ignore the matter and trust that the boy friend will find her out. He must be rather a chump to think that a really nice girl would be so disloyal to her own sister.

Bee and Betty: I should think that married men who would flirt with girls and take them out would make mighty poor husbands. And girls who would deliberately try to make men's wives jealous would hardly make good wives.

Be Graceful To Set Off Paris Frock

By GLADYS GLAD

Have you ever noticed the exquisite grace of Jeanette MacDonald's carriage, the rhythmic harmony of her walk? If you haven't, watch her carefully the next time she comes to the scene. Forget her lovely voice for a moment, and give your attention to the beauty and poise of her movements. Observe the manner in which she holds herself, the naturalness and liquid ease of her gait. And try to emulate her.

Too many women now-a-days have developed manners of walking that are anything but graceful. And our new, sleek, dress styles demand nothing more, they do demand graceful movements. The gal who waddles around like a goose, or plods along like a tired dray horse, or the sister who swaggers around like a conceited male, or the dame who moves her body stiffly and jerkily like a mechanical doll, will make even the most expensive Paris frock look like a bargain-basement purchase.

Perhaps the free-and-easy tomboyish manners of the short skirt days are, in a measure, responsible for the lack of grace in the gait of many of us. A sort of hang-over, one might say, from yesterday's over-indulgence in mannishness. And for any such hang-over I'd prescribe a good, stiff bromo in the form of a few walking exercises.

In cultivating a graceful walk your first consideration should be the way in which you hold your self. The body should be held erect, but not stiffly, or tensely. Draw yourself up to your full height with a slow, stretching movement. If you do not tense your muscles in doing this, your spinal column will fall into its proper alignment, with the shoulders held back, the shoulderblades flat, the chest raised, the abdomen held in, and the head poised at a perfect angle. The feet should be parallel, with the heels two to four inches apart.

When you have assumed this posture walk forward. The legs should be swung forward easily and naturally from the hips. Your heels will touch the ground first on each step, but your weight should be balanced forward at once onto the ball of the foot. And the weight of the body should fall on the outside of the ball of the foot, and not the inside.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Cosmetics

Nancy: Reliable brands of powder, rouge and lipstick will not harm your skin, providing that you cleanse the skin thoroughly after their use. Make-up should never be applied to a soiled skin.

Coffure

R. F. D.: Try parting your hair on the side. Then arrange it in soft waves, and wear a cluster of ringlets at the nape of the neck. Encourage the waviness of your hair by frequent finger-waves or comb-waves. You should weigh about 128 pounds.

Thin Arms

F. R.: You should weigh about 130 pounds. Massage your arms nightly with warmed cocoa butter. Also, practice the following exercise: Stand erect, arms extended at the sides. Rotate the arms vigorously, describing complete circles with the fingertips.

Editor's Note: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlet on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write her, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10 cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling. For articles on "Care of the Hands and Nails," and "Care of the Feet and Legs," 2 cents in coin for each, a self-addressed, stamped envelope are required. Personal questions of beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED
by Phil

Inasmuch as home runs now play such an important part in the game and its records, dimensions of the various ball parks of the major leagues should be of particular interest.

A general idea of the length of the drive necessary to hit the ball out of the park is given by a table of measurements which, if you keep reading long enough, you may analyze, but of course there must be allowance for the height of the fences and also for screens which tower above the barriers in some of the parks like the one at Detroit.

Here are the measurements of all the parks in the two major leagues:

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Boston

From these figures it may be seen at a glance, or at least in a couple of glances, that it is more difficult to knock home runs to right field at Cincinnati, to left field at Brooklyn and to center field at the Polo Grounds in New York than in any of the other parks. All of which should not materially affect the price of eggs in Oskosh.

BILLY EVANS NOT SEEKING CHANGE

CLEVELAND, April 7.—William G. (Billy) Evans, general manager of the Cleveland Indians, who has been mentioned as the most probable successor to the late Ernest S. Barnard as president of the American League, today removed himself as a candidate for the post in a statement to the press and public.

Evans declared that he wished to remain as general manager of the Indians, explaining that his connection with the Cleveland club is a "most happy one."

Buccaneers Begin Spring Grid Training

THIRTY-FIVE TURN OUT MONDAY; SEVEN LETTERMEN ANSWER

Two Other Veterans Are Available; Guards Offer Problem

Basketball being a dead issue and interest in softball and baseball gaining rapid momentum, Xenia Central High School football candidates who will be available for the 1931 campaign started spring training at Cox Field Monday afternoon.

Returning to Xenia after spending the week's spring vacation at his home in New Concord, Coach Walter C. "Pinky" Wilson issued a call for spring practice and a grand total of thirty-five gridiron prospects responded to the summons. Thus it would appear the 1931 Buccaneer football squad will not lack material, any other shortcomings notwithstanding.

Spring practice will be in progress during the next two or three weeks, during which time Coach Wilson will emphasize the importance of fundamentals.

Monday afternoon's large turnout was exceptionally gratifying to the Buccaneer mentor and the athletes put in a lively session of kicking and passing the piskin.

Numbered among the candidates who were on hand were seven of the nine lettermen who will be back next fall. Carl Smith, center; "Mo" Hyman, end; Howard Thompson, fullback; Freddie Dalton, halfback; Dick Cramer, quarterback; Everett Hall, tackle, and William Warner, halfback, were the veteran gridgers who reported for duty. The only absentee among the lettermen were Andrew Frazer, sturdy tackle, and Jimmie Raile, end, who are not in the best physical condition.

Indications are that Coach Wilson will have experienced players for all positions except guards. The guards being of utmost importance in the development of a strong football machine, the Buccaneer mentor will scan the crop of new candidates closely in search of guard material.

WHO will be the next president of the American league?

This question precipitated by the death of Ernest S. Barnard, leader of the junior circuit, has thrown into shadow the usual April interest in last-minute preparations for the baseball season.

Selection of a successor to Barnard is more than just the problem of finding a big name, a figurehead to pose in the front office of the circuit. The new leader must be, as was Barnard and his predecessor, the late Ban Johnson, a natural leader, a diplomat and, above all, a first-class baseball man.

Barnard was all of these in a superlative way. So must his successor be. That's why you can throw out most of those already mentioned as candidates. They do not fit the job.

IF this department were picking the new president of the American league the choice would settle on Tyrus Raymond Cobb.

Ty may not be a born diplomat but he has proven himself an aggressive, clear-thinking leader and he knows more baseball than the next man.

Cobb spent his entire career as player and manager in the American league. He is still a great, popular idol and holds the public confidence. He is financially "set" to be able to devote all his energies to the job. Above all, he more than any other major league president of the recent past should be able to understand ball players.

Aside from the sentimental angle of the raw rookie up from the Georgia sandlots in 1905 becoming the head of a major league in 1931 (the old office-boy-to-bank-president motif) the ball players, at last, would have one of their own at the top.

OTHERS whose names deserve more than passing mention are Frank Navin, president of the Detroit club and league vice president; Ed Barrow, secretary-business manager of the New York club; William Harridge, league secretary, and Billy Evans, business manager of the Cleveland club.

Navin has served as acting president and is familiar with the duties of a league president as is Harridge. Barrow has had experience as president of a league (he was boss of the International League in 1916). Billy Evans was mentioned for the presidency when Ban Johnson resigned in 1927.

Still other mentioned are Philadelphia manager, Connie Mack; Clark Griffith, Washington club head; Mayor James Walker of New York and several prominent newspapermen.

KNUTE ROCKNE'S rapid rise to gridiron greatness as a coach made him one of America's most outstanding national figures. As such he found himself in constant demand by the public. Football fans wanted to see and hear about Rockne in football season and out.

This situation, of course, created many opportunities to add to his income. And Rockne, with three husky young sons and a daughter as well as a wife to provide for, like any other father and husband, took natural advantage of these opportunities for the well-being of his family.

One source of income, aside from his comparatively small salary as football coach, was lecturing. His dynamic, witty talks made him a much-sought after-dinner speaker and he was kept busy during the off season appearing at banquets and luncheons.

THOSE millions who could not see Rockne in person came to know the coach's voice through the medium of his many radio broadcasts which, by last autumn, had become weekly affairs.

Rockne's writings were another medium by which he talked to the host of football fans and others.

At his death he had already written an autobiography and many magazine and newspaper articles.

Only last autumn Rockne became identified with a South Bend brokerage firm. He immediately took a keen, active interest in this new enterprise of his.

Having already made one series of instructive football motion pictures Knute was on his way to the coast to discuss the production of more talks when the transcontinental plane in which he was riding fell and ended his career.

In these years Rockne's myriad duties and interests astounded "How does Rock stand up under the strain?" they asked.

There was but one answer—Rock possessed amazing boundless energy.

SUCCESSOR TO ROCKNE PUZZLES NOTRE DAME; ANDERSON LIKELY

SOUTH BEND, Ind., April 7.—Wherever Notre Dame men gathered today there was one topic uppermost:

"Who will take Knute Rockne's place?"

There will be a head coach. And there will be an athletic director. Perhaps there may be a combination of both. At least it is certain that the positions will be filled.

But by whom—and when?

There was no one who could supply the answer.

As far as the school itself is concerned any attempt at finding a successor for Rockne would be like devising a substitute for the sunrise.

From the Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, president, down to the young chap who earned the title of "chaperon" for Knute last season the feeling was that there is no man who can take Rockne's place. And this is seconded by the multitude.

Members of the faculty refuse to discuss the subject at this time but as far as the job of directing the football team is concerned "Hunk" Anderson likely will carry on at least for the 1931 season.

Had Rockne lived this would have been the situation in the season of 1933 because Knute himself had indicated that at the expiration of his contract he would turn the heavy work over to Anderson, and continue as athletic director with the honorary title of advisory coach.

That combination would have been ideal because there always would be a Rockne around in a "pinch."

Anderson knows everything there is to know about Notre Dame football as it is constituted at present. He knows the players and he knew what the plans were for the 1931 season. It is a known fact that the success of Notre Dame teams have their foundation in the spring. It is at this time that the regular team is picked.

Working under Knute Anderson turned out a corking job in developing line men. But Anderson did not inherit the Rockne magnetism or the Rockne psychology. Knute took that with him.

There has been speculation—of the free for all variety—on Rockne's likely successor as head coach or athletic director—or perhaps the combination. This is limitless.

Jimmy Phelan, coach at the University of Washington, and former skipper at Purdue has been talked of both as athletic director and head coach. He is tied to a three year contract at Washington for two more years.

"Slip" Madigan, coach at St. Mary's has his "front men" so has Gus Dorais, the party of the first part in the famous Dorais-Rockne forward pass combination. He is at the University of Detroit.

The names of Charles Bachman of the University of Florida, Harry Stuhldreher of Villanova and Adam Walsh of Yale have been considered. But only in conversation and with no official tinge whatsoever.

FALL WILL APPEAL DECISION OF COURT

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., April 7.—Albert Fall, former secretary of the interior, will appeal the recent decision of the District of Columbia court of appeals upholding the sentence of one year in jail and $10,000 fine for accepting a bribe from Edward L. Doheny, according to word reaching here today from the Fall ranch at Three Rivers, N. M.

Fall indicated that he would carry the case to the United States supreme court providing arrangements could be made for financing the appeal. Although Fall's financial condition is such that the appeal would be difficult at present, members of his family are rallying to his aid.

CROSS RETIRES AS FUEL COMPANY HEAD

COLUMBUS, O., April 7.—C. I. Weaver, formerly of Springfield, O., today was elected president of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co., the North-western Natural Gas Co., the Federal Gas and Fuel Co., the Springfield Gas Co., as associated companies at the annual meeting in Columbus.

Weaver succeeds Raymond Cross, who today announced his retirement in accordance with a desire expressed a year ago. Cross, however, continues as a director of each of the companies.

RETAIL MERCHANTS WILL PASS ON ADS

All advertising schemes for which local business men are solicited for contributions must henceforth have the sanction of the Xenia Retail Merchants' Association. It was decided at a monthly dinner-meeting of the organization Tuesday night at the Iron Lantern Cafe. Hereafter sponsors of advertising stunts will be required to first obtain authorization of the association if they expect cooperation on the part of Xenia merchants.

THREE TEAMS WITHDRAW FROM SOFTBALL LEAGUES AT MEETING

Three teams have cut adrift from the Xenia Playground Association, leaving ten entrants, the exact number desired, still within the fold for the 1931 softball campaign.

Withdrawal of the prospective Coates Barber Shop, Krippendorff Dittmann Co., and Carol-Binder Co. teams was announced at a joint meeting of the Softball Commission with team managers and players Monday night.

The three withdrawals reduced the number of teams in the field to ten, the same number which constituted the two local leagues last season. It was announced.

Competing teams must submit their eligibility lists not later than the evening of Friday, April 10, after which the Commission will divide the entrants into two leagues composed of six and four teams, respectively. A season's schedule will then be framed.

Eight teams were represented by their managers at Monday night's meeting and the proposition of allowing the players to wear spiked shoes was voted down.

An effort to change the regulation adopted at the close of the 1930 season, which stipulates that ten players instead of nine shall legally constitute a team this summer also ended in failure despite considerable agitation in some quarters for a return to the old plan. The plan was defeated when a tie vote of 4 to 4 resulted, the managers doing the voting.

EMPHASIZES NEED FOR FERTILIZING ORCHARDS EARLY THIS SPRING

In all this work it is advisable to think in terms of the entire orchard area rather than only of the soil immediately about the trees.

Attention is again called by the Ohio Experiment Station to the importance of an early application of fertilizer for orchards this spring. The drought of last year has devastated the trees in many sections of the state, and the stimulation which results from nitrogenous fertilizers should aid in their recovery. Perhaps an application two or three weeks earlier than usual would be advisable. This would assure an initial start which should both improve the growth and aid materially in the percentage set of blossoms.

J. H. Gourley, chief of the Department of Horticulture, points out that there is a too prevalent tendency to distribute fertilizer in a narrow ring beneath the trees rather than to distribute it over the root area of the trees. It is not easy to distribute fertilizers evenly over the ground, but a much greater effort should be made to cover the entire root area which extends considerably beyond the drip of the branches in many soils. In older orchards the roots meet between the rows.

In the application of superphosphate, which is recommended for all Ohio orchards, it is most feasible to distribute it with a seed drill between the tree rows and not to attempt to spread it beneath the trees.

THE ROMANCE OF A BUSINESS GIRL

By EDNA ROBB WEBSTER ♦ Author of "Dad's Girl", "Joretta", Etc.

Copyright 1931, Central Press Association

READ THIS FIRST: Mary Vaughn is private secretary to Ronald K. Foster, an investment banker of Wall Street. She is the sole support of her mother, twin brothers and a sister, who is only two years her junior, whom she has always cared for and to whom she has given the best of everything. Bonnie abhors work, is the spoiled beauty of the family and lets it be known that she is not going to drudge all her life for a living. Mary's whole world changes when debonair Dick Baldwin, who works for another firm in "the street" begins to take her out. Mary plans to attend a big football game with Dick, so Bonnie arranges for Walter Hyme to take her also, but his old car conveniently breaks down at the last moment, so Dick asks them to ride in his rumble seat.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 7 Cheers and bo-la-bo-las! Throats bursting with song and yells, rival bands flaunting snappy, syncopated harmony. Deep, sonorous voice of the announcer at the microphone, ascending to a higher staccato pitch in tense moments.

Eager bodies, swaying in unison to and fro, following the ball. Trampling feet, clapping hands, shouts, laughter, exclamatory groans, shrill whistles, terse orders of the umpire. Tackle, huddle, forward pass — will he make it—has he got it—almost there—five yards to go—frenzied cheering—no!—back again.

Color, zest, joy, youth—life at the zenith—at a football game.

Dick Baldwin lived the game, every minute and gesture of it. Mary could feel his tenseness, then the flexing of his muscles when critical seconds passed. She never had been so much a part of a contest. That was the way life affected Dick, she thought, watching him fondly. To share his life would be really to live.

Bonnie squealed and stood up in her seat, sang at the top of her lungs and chattered like an excited chipmunk; but she wasn't half as thrilled and eager as Mary, whose face glowed with excitement and whose subdued, contralto voice vibrated with suppressed emotion.

Dick sat between the girls, but it was to Mary he turned in the high moments and it was Mary's hand that he clasped in sheer abandonment when Princeton made the last touchdown, kicked goal and won the game, seven to six.

During the intermission, Bonnie had been taken with a siege of violent sneezing, that continued at intervals throughout the next half. Sneezes were effectively interspersed with sniffling, but her condition was not seriously considered until the game was over.

Her exuberance had waned toward the last and now, with the excitement subsiding, the three noted that Bonnie actually drooped.

"Why, what's the matter, honey?" Mary was all concern for the little sister who had been her responsibility ever since she could toddle, herself.

Bonnie sniffled, sneezed and said thickly, "Rascally. 'Oh, just my luck. Guess I took cold riding in the wind. I feel awful, Mary. I just ache all over."

"Why, you poor kid!" Dick exclaimed. "Darn shame. We didn't think it was cold, did we, Mary? But then, we were inside, of course."

"Well, you ride inside with Dick, going home," Mary decided instantly. "I'll get in the rumble seat with Walter."

"Then you would take cold," Dick objected. "It's colder to-night than it was this morning. Three of us can sit together. Hyme will be all right alone."

Bonnie glanced at him with disgust, then groaned. "I don't believe I could stand it, to be crowded three in a seat, Mary dear. I do ache so dreadfully. I wish I hadn't come," she wailed miserably.

The three exchanged worried glances. "Never mind about me, Dick, I shan't be cold at all. You see, I'm used to being out in all kinds of weather, and Bonnie isn't. There, dear, we'll wrap you in a blanket all warm and you can just be snug as a bug all the way."

"Haden't we better get some supper before we start? I'm famished. How about something nice and hot, Bonnie? Wouldn't that pep you up?"

"It might," Bonnie smiled wanly. Both boys took her by an arm as if she were already an invalid. Mary walked along briskly beside Dick. It wasn't a very hilarious supper party, to be sure, but Bonnie was the center of attraction and interest. She played the part with increasing success.

She even managed to feign such weakness, that she rode all the way home with her head nestled on Dick's broad shoulder. The soft woolly texture of her tam brushed against his cheek and neck and her fragrant, helpless weariness tantalized him. Now, his smiles and words were turned to her, tender with concern. He couldn't manage even very well to look backward at Mary. Bonnie exulted in her triumph.

She might have been less jubilant, had she known that quite as often as Dick asked about her comfort, he wondered whether Mary were warm and comfortable, and that a hundred times he thought how nice it would be if it were Mary's head on his shoulder instead of Bonnie's.

Mary, shivering beside Walter in the rumble seat, thought merrily that they never would reach home. She was worried about Bonnie at the same time that she resented her intrusion in the party. It was dark before they started, and a full harvest moon had already thrust itself up over the edge of the horizon, like a polished copper disk. The hills and ravines were now alternate patches of mellow-gold light and dense, smoke-scented shadow. Mystery and witchery were abroad, as if black witches sailed on broomsticks through the hazy, bright air. Romance beckoned on every hill and receded into every hollow. This was to have been her own evening with Dick, Mary thought. And then, the next instant she would be worrying about the possibility of Bonnie having pneumonia.

When they did reach home, after a too long and not too pleasant drive for anyone except Bonnie, the two boys virtually carried her into the house.

Dick looked worried. "I suppose I'm to blame for this," he said soberly to Mary. "I shouldn't have offered to take them in the rumble. I didn't realize it was so cold. Are you all right?" he asked anxiously.

"Of course I am," she answered briskly. "It's just because Bonnie is so delicate that things affect her easily. But she'll be all right, don't worry. I'll take care of her."

She pressed her hand to Bonnie's white, smooth forehead. "I don't think she has a temperature. A hot bath and sleep will fix her up fine."

"Well, I hope so. Let me know, won't you? Awful sorry, Bonnie," he leaned over her, where she was huddled in an armchair. But she managed to look ravaging in spite of her misery. Dick patted her hand as if she were a child and she raised round, grateful eyes to his face. Nor did she miss the gleam of admiration she saw in his.

The boys left them immediately, so Mary could get Bonnie to bed, there being no other choice for anyone.

Bonnie took her medicine without a murmur. She submitted to a hot mustard bath, a brisk rub, drank hot lemonade that Mary made for her and sank in bed with a groan. All for a purpose.

Mary lay awake in her own bed for a long time listening to Bonnie's breathing and occasional restlessness. Her thoughts wandered like aimless vagabonds, from what the day had promised to what it had brought. So joyously anticipated and so miserably ended.

The game had been splendid. The foursome might have been fun, and was, until Bonnie became ill. It wasn't that. It was just that she hadn't wanted to share the day and Dick with anyone. Life was queer, anyway. No matter how you schemed and planned and worked, things almost never happened the way you wanted them. It was like any machinery. Someone planned and perfected it to run smoothly and efficiently and then another bungled its operation or Having come around to the opinion that Clara Bow should have dramatic roles, Paramount plans for the red-head to follow "Kick In" with "The Woman," a story about a telephone operator.

Stuart Walker, who has given many stage stars their early training, will direct Clara in this opus as soon as he closes his stock season at Tart Auditorium, Cincinnati. In the meantime Clara will enjoy a month's vacation.

"The Woman" was written several years ago by William DeMille, but never found its way to the Compson, Jean Arthur, Allison Skipworth, Tully Marshall and Eva McKenzie.

Tod Browning's next after "Dracula" is "Iron Man," by W. R. Burnett, the story of the private life of a prize fighter. Lewis Ayres played the title part and others are Jean Harlow, Robert Armstrong, John Miljan, Mike Donlin, Eddie Dillon, Ned Sparks, Sammy Blum and Marnie Cohan.

Charles G. Norris' novel "Seed" is the starring vehicle for John Boles and Genevieve Tobin and the cast also includes Lois Wilson, Raymond Hackett, Bette Davis, Zasu Pitts, Richard Tucker, Jed Prouty and Frances Dade. "Up for Murder," a Lew Ayres starring vehicle with Genevieve Tobin is next. Erich Von Stroheim is starting "Blind Husbands" soon and George Melford will direct "White Cap" live. The final subject is "Strictly Dishonorable," the Brock Pemberton play.

screen. Among the stars whom Walker has helped train for the stage are Peggy Wood, Mary Ellis, Basil Rathbone, Bert Lyon, Kay Francis and Bert Lytell.

Wisely, no doubt, RKO is making no attempt to look for a story for Pola Negri until after her arrival in Hollywood, scheduled for April 20. It has been determined, however, that Paul Stein will direct her. He did "The Red Peacock," which was one of her most popular vehicles before coming to America.

The nine productions necessary to complete this year's schedule for Universal are either finished or ready to go into production this month. The first is "Bad Sisters," the Booth Tarkington story, which "Bart Henley directed. The cast includes Conrad Nagel, Sidney Fox, Bette Davis, Zasu Pitts, Slim Summerville, Emma Dunn, Charles Winninger, Humphrey Bogart, Bert Roach and David Durand. Miss Fox and Miss Davis are stage actresses being introduced to the screen. The former played in "Lost Sheep" on the stage and Miss Davis in "Broken Dishes" and "Solid South."

The next production is "Many a Slip," the Broadway play by Edith Fitzgerald. The cast includes Joan Bennett, Lewis Ayres, Slim Summerville, Ben Alexander, Virginia Sale, J. C. Nugent, Vivian Oakland and Roscoe Karns. Another Broadway play is the basis for the next production, "Virtuous Husband," adapted from "Apron Strings" by Dorrance Davis. Its cast includes Elliott and J. C. Nugent, Betty

MANY IN DIVORCE CASES
LOS ANGELES, Calif., April 7.—With 93,000 divorce cases on Los Angeles court dockets during the past five years, the court clerk's office has estimated that one fourth of the population of Los Angeles had been directly or indirectly concerned in marital litigation in that time. As each suit involved a husband and wife, and the average family consisted of the parents and at least one child, and in many cases co-respondents, the clerk's office estimated the total at 500,000 persons or one fourth of the population of Los Angeles County.

YELLOW SPRINGS TO VOTE ON CHANGING GOVERNMENT FORM

Question of appointment of a commission composed of fifteen citizens to frame a suitable charter for the village, a necessary preliminary step looking toward eventual adoption of the commission-manager form of government in Yellow Springs, will be submitted to a vote of the citizens at a special election to be held June 23.

Date for the first of two special elections was fixed Monday night by the village council after petitions bearing the signatures of 109 residents of the village, requesting appointment of such a commission, had been submitted. Only seventy or eighty signatures were necessary to initiate the movement seeking a change in the form of village government.

At the coming special election the citizens will vote upon appointment of the commission and upon its members, after which a second special election will be called at which the residents will approve or reject the charter so framed.

FRIEND PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO CHARGE

Not guilty was the plea entered by John Friend, reputed proprietor of a club house on the Dayton-Xenia Pike, near the Montgomery County line, when arraigned before Probate Judge S. C. Wright Monday on a charge of possessing liquor.

Friend was released on $1,000 bond. His hearing was assigned for Tuesday morning but was later postponed until April 15 by Judge Wright.

Friend's arrest was an outgrowth of a raid conducted by Sheriff John Baughn and his deputies, assisted by police Saturday night. Battering their way into a stone bungalow, the raiding officers confiscated four gallons of alcohol, two kegs and six pints of beer, two pumps, a truck and some beer-cooling apparatus.
